

James hears a friend group talking about all the new songs that have just been released by a new artist. He feels left out.

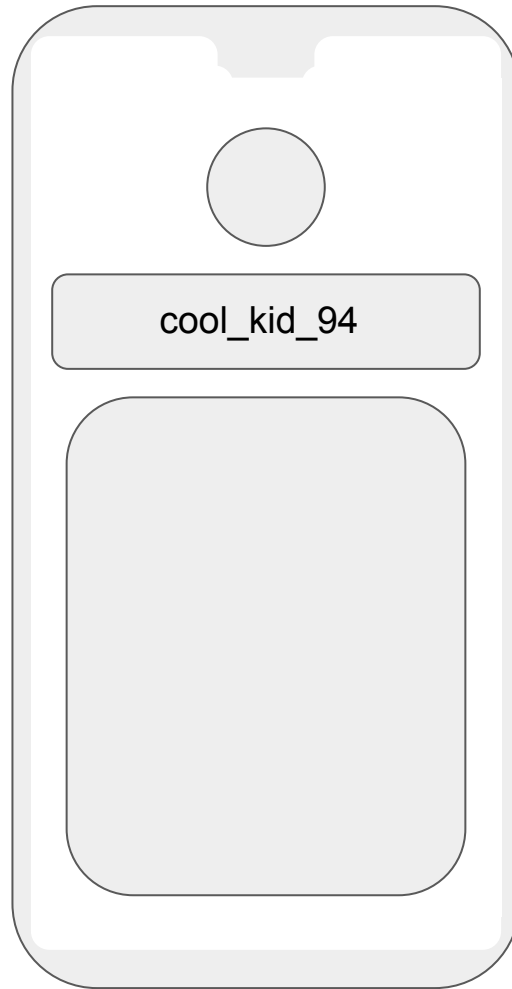

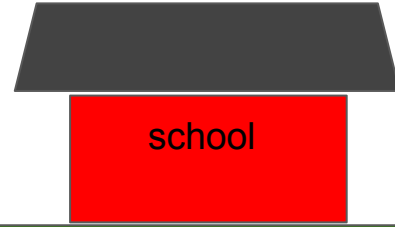

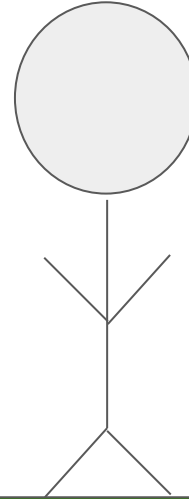

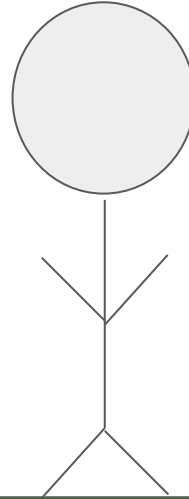

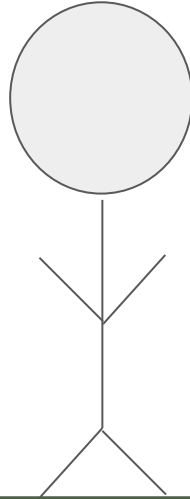

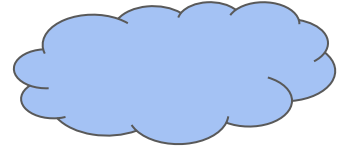

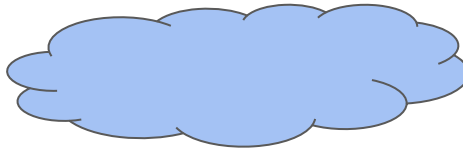

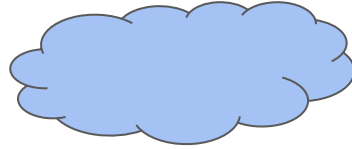

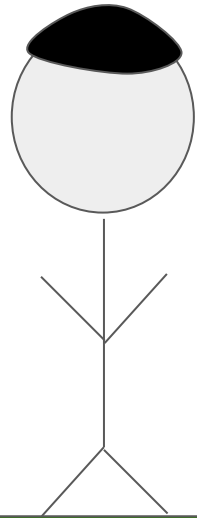

James he also hears them talking about a new app called “Music Tinder.” He goes on the app store and searches it up.

James finally downloads the app and notices all these cool features on the app. Like new songs, artist, all the hits, and many more.

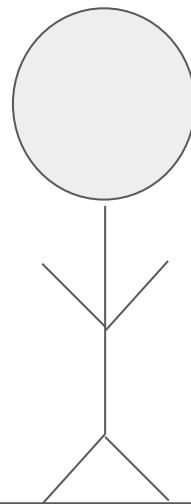

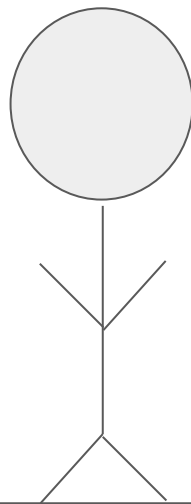

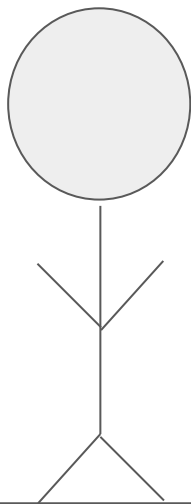

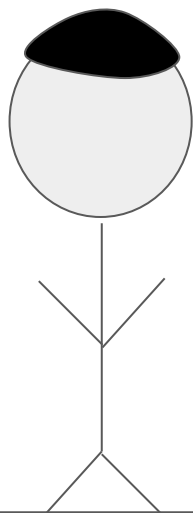

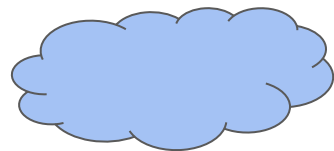

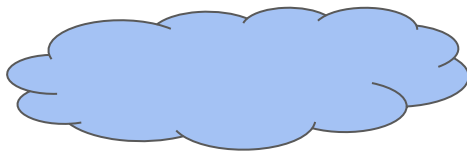

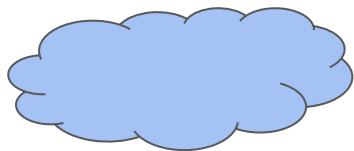

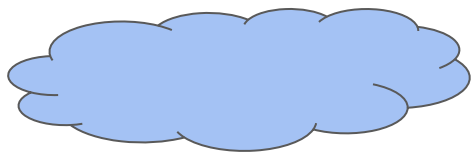

James gets more familiar with the app and starts to add all of this friends to see what type of music they listen to also.

One day james hears another group talking about new songs that he also likes. He goes and talks to them about the songs and the new app he found.

All of his new friends download the app and they have the same music taste as him. They add him as friends on the app and they become best friends.
